

“ The Art of the Beloved Community ”

A National Art Project of Fellowship of Quakers in the Arts(F.Q.A.)

May - December 2018

Through FQA’s 2018 national arts project, we hope to better promote within our community equal access, support and inclusion for the artists and art in our midst. While we can be more open to our differences, we can also be secure in our community. Let us bring forth the richness of the variety in humanity and nature through our art.

Following are some queries to stimulate organizers and artists as they develop an arts event and/or discussion around this topic. We welcome your ideas, questions, comments, and especially specifics on name & description of your event, date, time and location so that it may be included in publicity.

- As artists and appreciators of art, how can we most powerfully represent the richness of the planet and its people? How can we connect our art with our concern for the earth and its inhabitants, human and other than human? What are we, as Quaker artists, called to do?
- How can we better nourish and support a wide range of types of arts and artists in a way that will empower us to appreciate the variety within our beloved community ?
- How can we express the depth and breadth of the beloved community in our artwork? And share our art with others?
